Promoting Best Practice

Our qualifications and accompanying training courses - provided by our international network of Accredited Training Organizations (ATOs) - are designed to equip individuals with best practice knowledge, tools and techniques to tackle key business objectives whilst improving efficiency and performance.

So how do we go about it? Collaboration is key!

- We support and develop new and existing qualifications which are designed to support knowledge-based workers in key management disciplines
- We accredit an international network of Accredited Training Organizations (ATOs) and Accredited Consulting Organizations (ACOs) which provide approved training and consultancy services to end users in support of our qualifications
- We certify individual trainers and consultants of ATOs and ACOs to validate their experience and competencies, ensuring quality of delivery to end users
- We manage certification processes for organizations and individuals in support of our schemes and qualifications.

We work with our key strategic partners and recognized industry experts to ensure that our schemes and qualifications:-

- Are aligned with and relevant to current industry practices
- Are applicable to any individual and organization regardless of size and the industry or sector in which they operate
- Equip individuals with highly relevant, current and best practice knowledge, tools and techniques to support key business challenges
- Add real value to individuals and the organizations they represent
- Support professional development and adoption of best practice knowledge, skills and practices.

Key partners include: ASL BiSL Foundation, AXELOS, BRMI, Change Management Institute (CMI), CESG, DSDM Consortium, IACCM, IAITAM, itSMF-International, Ploughshare and Service Desk Institute (SDI) .

Committed to Quality

We are committed to quality in everything we do. Our qualifications and accreditation activities are developed and managed in accordance with a robust quality management system and processes accredited by the United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS – the national accreditation body recognized by the UK government to accredit organizations providing certification services).

This dedication and commitment ensures candidates sitting our examinations have confidence in the exam and certification process, as well as ensuring the quality of training and consultancy services provided by our global network of ATOs and ACOs.

Our partners and clients value the high level of quality assurance we apply to our processes, often citing quality as the top reason for working with us.

Globally Recognized and Respected Brands

Our schemes are carefully selected and developed to ensure they offer real value to individuals and organizations.

A number of our products and associated brands are recognized around the world as best practice in their area of business. APMG International exams have been taken in over 130 countries around the world.

Our key IT Service Management certifications are aligned to the SFIA (Skills For the Information Age) Framework. Mapping APMG certifications to SFIA enables us to explain how APMG certifications relate to each other, and how personnel can best develop their knowledge, skills and certifications portfolio for specific IT roles.

An International Organization

Below are some key facts highlighting the global reach of APMG International and our qualifications:

- Thousands of examinations taken every month around the world; over 1.85 million exams since we started.
- Examinations taken in over 130 countries in all regions of the world.
- Qualifications available in multiple languages.
- Local presence in key geographic locations providing regional support for partners and candidates.
- Hundreds of Accredited Training and Consulting Organizations globally, employing over 1500 accredited trainers and consultants.

Our ATOs and ACOs

Our Accredited Training (ATOs) and Consulting (ACOs) Organizations are subject to rigorous assessment and surveillance activity to ensure and maintain high standards of delivery in training and consultancy services.

Our ATOs:

- Offer a variety of learning options in support of our qualifications, from traditional classroom-based training to online/distance learning options
- Employ trainers whose subject knowledge, training skills and experience are assessed and accredited
- Combine to make accredited courses available around the globe
- Provide training solutions in support of our qualifications for both individuals and organizations.

Our ACOs:

- Employ consultants with significant experience in portfolio, programme, project, risk and change management (assessed and accredited by APMG), providing expert consultancy services.
- Support organizations with the adoption and implementation of portfolio, programme and project management best practice
- Offer strategic advice and guidance to help improve performance and results in key business areas
- Deliver outcomes and benefits from change initiatives
- Embed change and improvements to make benefits sustainable
- Are licensed to use specialist tools to improve organizational maturity in portfolio, programme and project management.

Make our ATOs and ACOs your first port of call if you are:

- An individual seeking recognized certification in key professional management disciplines such as Programme and Project Management, IT Service Management and Change Management
- An organization seeking recognized certification for your employees in these key disciplines
- An organization seeking advice and support on portfolio, programme and project management implementation and improvement.

For more information on our accreditation processes and benefits, and how you can become an ATO or ACO, please ask for a copy of our Accreditation Brochure or get in touch.

Making professional certification more accessible

Accredited training or self-study?

For the majority of our certifications you can choose to attend an accredited training course with one of our ATOs. Alternatively you can self-study, preparing for your chosen examination in your own time and completing your examination when ready.

Convenience and flexibility through online exams

We continually strive to make certification in best practice easily accessible. To support this aim, we have teamed up with providers of specialist technology to enable you to sit our exams remotely at a time and location of your choice.

We run a number of public exam centres in key locations to support self-studying candidates. In addition, we have established a partnership with the British Council to benefit from their extensive network of locations across the globe where APMG exams can be administered.

See the back page of this brochure for international contact details.

TOP TIP

When choosing your study options, do be mindful of the validated skills and experience of trainers employed by our ATOs. If you choose to self-study, you will not benefit from these highly valuable attributes.

Pass rates for self-studying candidates are almost always significantly lower than those for candidates attending accredited training courses.

Work with the best

APMG has been a leader in the field of professional certification and accreditation services for over 20 years.

We are always seeking new partnerships and opportunities.

Got an idea for a new certification? Already have one and trying to promote it globally?

Then speak to us about potential collaboration.

We would love to hear from you!
